A Peek at Our Week

Reading: This week, we will be retelling steps or procedures in a text using temporal words. This is also a RADD DUDE week. With RADD DUDE, we are working on restating the question, answering it, and giving details. Please review this skill by asking your kids questions at home and having them restate and answer them back to you. We will also be preparing for our Unit Test which will be Monday, November 23rd.

Math: We are starting multiplication this week. We will practice using arrays, repeated addition, groups of, and number lines to solve and read multiplication problems. I would recommend purchasing multiplication cards ($1 at dollar tree) and studying for nightly homework! We will also start introducing different x facts and making our own cards in class.

ELA/Writing: We will revisit writing a personal narrative. We will write a narrative about our own lives and share them with the class.

Science/SS: We are going to continue learning about "The Gram" and will practice measuring objects with our balance. We will work on making kilogram pieces with gravel. We will also learn about soaking sponges and measuring mass.

From the Teacher's Desk

Don't forget! Parent teacher conferences are next Friday, November 20th.

Confirmations have been sent out to you! If you haven't received one or forgot to send back the permission slip, contact us to set up a meeting time!

Student council will be continuing to collect canned yams, canned corn, and toothpaste this Thanksgiving season!

We will be having our Winter Program on December 17th. We will perform for Grandparents during the day and a family performance at night.

Information will be sent out this week!
